WORKSHOP CONTENT:

How can we create church communities that make disciples who are learning to live well for Christ in today's new culture and engage compellingly with the people they meet in mission and in life? How can we create the apprentice culture that Jesus modelled and that will really help us learn and grow together in ways that connect to today's world?

Not just through one programme or one resource but by gaining a fresh sense of the comprehensive scope of God's interest in people's lives and by creating a church culture that really helps people grow in Christ-like living in every aspect of life.

Based round the enthusiastically received thinking in Mark Greene's 'Imagine how we can reach the UK' and LICC's more recent 'Let My People Grow', this practical, interactive, one day workshop is designed to help church leaders analyse their current church situation, and take steps towards creating a whole-life, disciple-making community.

The workshop combines practical interactive group exercises and team reflection time with robust theological reflection on the two core values underpinning a whole-life apprentice culture. For more details of the day's programme, visit www.licc.org.uk/imagine/events

Although not essential, participants would make optimum use of the day if they had already read LICC's two 'Imagine' magazines, Imagine how we can reach the UK and Let My People Grow. Both are available from LICC at £3 each or £5 for both - buy online at www.licc.org.uk/bookshop or by calling LICC on 020 7399 9555.

Evening Presentations

In a country where millions don't even know why Easter is a public holiday how can we reach the UK? Mark Greene presents a dynamic analysis of where we are as a nation, where we are as a church, how we got there and what really needs to change if we are to live and share Christ in our radically and rapidly changing culture. Hugely practical and Biblically astute, this refreshing and inspiring multi-media event is for anyone who's concerned about making a difference for Christ in today's culture.
